We are now through with county advertising, for a few months at least, and our readers may look for a larger quantity of reading matter. Our aim is to make the Northwest a purely local paper, in the interests of Henry county and its people—and especially in the interest of the Democratic cause.

There is not a business man in Napoleon but what should have his name and business represented in the columns of the Northwest. It shows thrift and enterprise, not only of the man but of the town and county. These are facts, but how few look upon them as such and take advantage of them. Have your name and business represented, if it is in only a line.

A horse attached to a cutter, belonging to Christ Lindau, took fright at the cars Tuesday evening and ran away. At Bitter's corner the animal struck and knocked down Mrs. Davidson, who was crossing the street at the time, injuring her quite severely. Fred. Now and then our country correspondents will tread upon the toes of some one, and the editor must take the curses for it, of course, and probably lose the friendship and patronage of the individual whose corns have been trod upon. To this state of things an editor must become hardened, as it is one of the inevitables. But we would again caution our correspondents to avoid personalities and deal in matters of news, and thus somewhat save the editor.

Sudden Death.

Friends and relatives in Napoleon were startled Thursday morning upon learning that R. C. Tyler, "Roll" as he was familiarly known, had died suddenly at Hamler the night before. The particulars of his death are about as follows: Wednesday evening he attended church with a friend, in his usual good health, but immediately after services he complained to a friend that his arm and side felt curious. He then went to his boardinghouse, and on entering spoke and said he guessed he would retire as he wanted to get up early in the morning. He had no more than got into his bed when a noise was heard from his room by those below, and upon going to him he was found to be in much agony and had lost the use of his arm and one side. He was also very sick at the stomach and complained of a severe pain in his head. A physician was sent for, but Mr. Tyler did not rally and within forty minutes was dead. The physician pronounced it paralysis. "Roll" was in the 37th year of his age, and at the time of his death was teaching school in Hamler, where he had made hosts of friends among citizens and his scholars, by his upright behavior and gentlemanly qualities. His funeral took place on Friday, from the residence of his father, Dr. A. H. Tyler, under the auspices of Co. F., O. N. G.

[Communicated.]

The young people of "upper tandom" of Napoleon gave a select "German" at the Rink Opera House last Friday night. A most enjoyable time was had and was doubly appreciated, it being the first of the season. The gentlemen appeared in "full dress," while the costumes of the ladies were dazzling beyond description. Diamonds worn in profusion with each other in brilliancy; while the bright beaming eyes of the fair owners sported a pleasant rivalry, they testified the keen enjoyment of the evening, and were not the least of their charms. The following is a list of the gentlemen and ladies: Chas. Jackson and Miss Lillah Hague, H. Van Campen and Miss Alta Suydam, H. G. Thiesen and Miss Jennie Fonke, W. S. Norton and Miss Ella Geering, A. E. Augenstein and Miss Lillie Bitter, John Tyler and Miss Lillian Heller, Otto Stave and Miss Christina Herbolzheimer, A. S. Thiesen and Miss Nettie Coove, Chas. Hague and Misses Laura Harrison and Nettie Jones, Geo. Teeple and Miss Lala Higgins, Jas. Allen and Miss Maggie Finnigan, F. Owing to the inclemency of the weather and the indisposition of some of its members, the "Trundle Bed" club did not respond. It is to be hoped their malady is not so serious as to prevent a meeting with us at our next ball.

On account of the success and general satisfaction given by the late ball, it has been resolved to continue by giving one every two weeks. For this purpose and also for the purpose of promoting more social intercourse, and for the mutual benefits to its members a permanent organization has been formed. The meeting called adopted a constitution, bylaws and standing rules, and also elected the following officers for the first six months: For President, H. VanCampen; Secretary, W. F. Baum; Treasurer, A. E. Augenstein. Executive Committee, Geo. Tyler, A. G. Thiesen, Julius Bernstein and Chas. Jackson, including also the three above named officers.

All those having notes or accounts to collect will do well by calling on E. C. Dodd, at the Mayor's office, City Building, who collects on a reasonable commission. Good surety given for all paper left in his hands. 2t.

Mince Meat with real boiled cider in it at the Pork House.

Mince Meat sweetened with sugar, instead of black strap molasses, at the Pork House.

Come to the Pork House and see them make mince meat and sausage and render lard. See who does it, and how it is done, and you will have none but our make of these articles.

We all know there is a vast difference in butter, even if cleanliness is not in the question. There is as much difference in the flavor of sausage. Try our make.

The English currents used in our mince meat are washed so thoroughly we think you will find no "grit" in it.

We warrant our sugar cured spare ribs and back bone to keep till first of April. They are better than fresh ones. We loan you a barrel with each one or two hundred lbs. They are handy to have in the house.

You can buy a gallon of mince meat of us cheaper than you can make the same amount, and we guarantee ours of first quality.

If you must make your own mince meat we have boiled cider of our own make, thick as molasses, for sale.

The casings in which our sausage is stuffed are of our own cleaning.

We sell a good cut of Pork for 6c per pound, or 20 lbs. for one dollar.
